The Spring in the Meadow and its Memories. Benjamin F. Taylor thus eloquently describes one spring in the mendow in the columns of the Chicago Journal :

Those cool shady spots in the far summer days, with their green mossy brinks, ever brimming, or the pure element gushing away from under some great rock that had been smitten, and running among the ledges and over the grasses, with a tinkling sound of jey, and a quiet murmur of content—such or joy, and a dust intrinued content—such are the places that however we may drink from marble fountains now, the soul goes hack to, all along through life's journey—goes hack and sits down under the sindow, and dips up the water in the hollow of a hand, and is made younger and stronger soain.

hand, and is made younger and stronger again.

Perhaps the first place you remember is when the old homestend was a cabin, and you went for water to a spring down in the meadow, and close in the edge of the corn. It trickled out between the finger-like roots of a great maple, and a little basin had been hollowed for it in the earth, and gravel as white as pearls had been strewn in it, and a little border of sand had been drawn around it, and there it made a small music all by it. it, and there it made a small music all by it-self through the summers. It used to seem to you as if the roots were the fingers of a to you as if the roots were the fingers of a great hand, that had let go their grasp upon the tressure they were holding, and there it trickled away between every two of them, and ran down into the sowl that the earth was patiently holding.

And what a nice, noiseless path it was, that wandered so gracefully down to it, between the tall grass; for it was not straight and angular, but so easy and natural to walk in, and a model for everybody's notion in life. Beside it, you remember the dandeifie. Beside it, you remember the dands-lions grew in their season, when God coined them out of the new gold of the spring and strewed them lavishly along, as though a purse had somehow came undone, as a fairy went down to the maple. What clusters of ourls you made out of the stems, and how nicely the tip of the tongue ran through the little cylinder of bitterness. And as the season went on, you used to blow away the uncombed locks from the old gray heads, and away they flew, each fiber with a life in it, for even they did not fall to the earth without His notice, who set them beside the meadow path, and along the dusty road.

Very old friends they were and very humble withal, but then how can we spare them out of the picture?

It was around the Spring that the children used to gather to tell stories, of summer evenings, when the air was full of the twitter of swallows, and the tinkling herds had all come house. But you grew older all the while, and the spring came to have other memories. Who was it—do you remember?—that used to come there from the neighbor's after water, and how did it happen that you were almost always there when she came? There, under the moonlight, beside the spring that kept on with its marmuring, as if it heard never a word, you talked with long pauses between, of yesterday, but chiefly of to-morrow. But there was danger in the pauses, and danger in the moonlight, but greater than all, in the light of her eyes. The dreams by the maple are sweet to rein the pauses, and danger in the moonlight, but greater than all, in the light of her eyes. The dreams by the maple are sweet to remember, but then there's something missing every-where. You have grown old, and come to be grand-father, but then the girl you met at the spring—wouldn't you like to see her, though you hardly dare own it? Better not, for she is old too, and for all the glad carols she had, when she tripped down the path with her pail, her voice has a quiver in it, and she stoops as she walks, and in fact has been younger by many a year; for "Grandina" has taken the place of the "Ellen" you used to breathe so noftly by the maple.

The Two Lives of William Shakspeare. Charles Reade, the novelist, is a little Charles Reade, the novelist, is a little exaptical as to the authenticity of the ordiekaptical as to the authenticity of the ordinary biography of Shakspeare, which he thus renders "that he was an uneducated youth, the son of a butcher; that he used to kill the calves, and make them a rhetorical speech first. We should rejoice when tyrants fall, and so knocked them down; that on leaving Stratford he was a raw youth, and knew nothing of law, nor of the drams, which, indeed, he could not know, since he created it up in London; that on arriving thither he went first into an attorney's office, and there picked up an astounding number of legal terms and phrases to adorn his poetry with; that getting sick of this, or his poetry with; that getting sick of this, or being diamissed, he held gentlemen's horses at the door of the theatre, and held them as they had never been held before; the natural at the door of the thestre, and held them as they had never been held before; the natural result followed; no gentleman would let his horse be held by anybody but Mr. Rarey, I beg pardon, Mr. Shakspeare; which observing he hired 'little scrubby boys,' and 'turning Briareus, with digits vicarious, he held all the horses that came, and received the main profit. That the actors, struck with this effort of intelligence, conversed with him, and finding him centum puer artium, invited him in, and hired him as an actor, that on this he sat down and wrote off Othelle, or Macbeth, as you and I write a letter, or as 'Arabian trees drop medicinal gum,' and crested the true drama. That he cared only for the money these productions brought him is; was quite indifferent to reputation, and, when he had made a competence, retired to Stratford, and left his plays for any body to do what they liked with, did not respect them enough to print them; and was a man apart, unlike all other men; an inspired idiot; in one word, a lusus natura."

This account of the dramatist is some thing more brief and less wenderful: His mother was of an old family of high standing in Warwickshire, and an helreus, his father a landed proprietor and hurgess of the town, afterward an alderman, and mayor in William's sixth year; he never was a butcher, nor any trade but a glover, and he ended a gustleman farmer.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

The Banking quarter was remarkably quiet yesterday, and there was no movement of consequence in any department of Finance. Money continued casy, with a better supply than there was demand. Kastern Exchange was still firm, though not very active, and Gold, New Orleans Exchange and Uncurrent Money are without alteration.

For the week ending last evening, Money was in less request than during the previous week, and business was not so brisk. Currency generally increased at the Banking. Financial Affairs. week, and business was not so brisk. Currency generally increased at the Bankinghouses, nearly all of which could do more good Paper than is offered to them. The applications for Loans were unusually light for the season, and very few borrowers were seen in the street. Interest-notes for first-class Paper are unchanged, ruling as before, at 10@12 per cent, in the regular quarters, and 15@18 for second-class in outside circles.

and 10@18 for second-class in outside circles.

Eastern Exchange remains unaltered and firm, at 3½ buying, and ½ premium selling rate, Baltimore being usually purchased below the regular price. The Ohio Valley drew, as usual, for their customers and friends, at 3½ premium.

Gold was quiet, with hardly any city demand, at 3½ premium; dealers giving 3¼ for round lots of Coin.

In New Orleans Sight Exchange, there were very few transactions, but there is now a disposition to buy: the rates being ½ dis. Gpar buying, and par@½ premium, selling. In Time-bills very little was done, though they were still in demand at 8@9 for sixty and ninety-day Drafts on the East, and 10 for those on the South.

Uncurrent Money underwent very little charge, the present rates of Discount heiner.

Uncurrent Money underwent very little change, the present rates of Discount being: Indiana Stock 1/4; Missouri 1/4(@1); Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin 1; Virginia (except Wheeling City and branches) 1/4; Pennsylvania (County) 1/4; Maryland 1/4; Michigan, North and South Carolina and Georgia 1; Tennessee 1/61/4; Canada 1; Alabama 11/4 liscount.

Provisions were quies with moderate demand for Mess Pork at $17.75 & 18, the latter price for city brands, at which rate 300 barrels were disposed of Bacon Shoulders changed hands to a moderate extent at 90,, and clear rib Sides at 1232c. Groceries remained firm. No change occurred in Wheat, but there was a better demand for prime grades: nearly 5,000 bushels selling at $1.10 for prime red, and $1.15@ 1.16 for prime white. Corn and Oats continued dull, and Rye and Barley steady. Hay was still dull at $15 for prime Timothy. Apples were dull, and Potatoes steady.

Tucsday's Tribune says of last week's New York Bank Statement, the leading features of which have been telegraphed to the Parss: of which have been telegraphed to the Priess:

The weekly statement of Bank averages is quite favorable, and shows a continuance of the contraction of loans which has been going on for six or seven weeks past, while the Specie ahowsonly a triffing decrease, notwithstanding the non-arrival of the California remittance by the J. L. Stopless. The loans show a nominal decrease of over $1,500,000, but this is only apparent as the Artisans Bank have been dropped from the table to-day.

The figures of this Bank, hast week, were: Loans, $1 372,366. Deposits, $1,000,412; Specie, $55,541. A considerable portion of these items, however, reappear in the statements of the Park and other banks. The following is a comparative statement of the condition of the Banks of the city of New York, September 29 and Getober 6, omitting the Artisans.

The same number of the Tribune says of Money matters in New York on Monday:

The supply of Money on call is large to-day, the Stock-houses having large amounts offered them at 7 per cent. In Paper there is no change to note. The death of Mr. Caleb O. Halstead, President of the Manhattan Bank, it amounced. At a regular weeting of the Bank, this morning, appropriate notice was taken of the death of its esteemed President. President.

The Foreign Bill market is dull, and again lower, with a good supply of ontside Bills, reduced, however, somewhat by the detention of the New Orbans malis. Banks' and Bankers' Sterling is held at 100%, but sales are made at 109 for the best signatures. First-class Merchants' Bills are 106146 105%. Francs are also dull at 5,17%-26,15.

Last week's Philadelphia Bank Statement, compared with the previous one shows an increase of $180,000 in Loans, $46,925 in Deposits, and $173,574 in Oirculation, with a decrease in Specie of $114,152. The loans of the Banks in that city exceed $28,009,000, a heavier line of discounts than they have maintained for several years.

In Boston, business continues inactive, and Money plenty at 6@7 per cent., with little demand outside of Bank.

In Philadelphia, the liberal accommodation at Bank makes an easy market, and rates continue about 6½ per cent. for really prime Bills, and 9@12 per cent. for Paper less favorably known.

In Baltimore, business is improving, and Money in more demand, at 7½@9 per cent. for first-class Paper. Last week's Philadelphia Bank Statement, for first-class Paper.

In St. Louis, there is little change in Monetary affairs, which are not very active. Currency is in fair supply, and Eastern Ex-change very scarce at %@l premium sell-

In Chicago, there is a good supply of Currency, but the demand is augmenting, and a close market is anticipated. Eastern Exchange is firm at %@1/2 buying, and 1 prem.

In New Orleans, Money remains extraordinarily tight for the season, and is very dear, 10@12, and even 15 per cent. being the rate for good Paper. The Banks have their Discount lines full, and are doing very little Paper. New York Sight-checks rule at ½ discount@par, Sixty-day Bills at 1½@2½ discount, and Sterling at 107@108½.

(Specially Reported for the Cincinnati Press.) Cinncinnati Horse Market. Cinneinnati Horse Market.

During the week ending last evening the city Horse market was rather quiet, though not remarkably so. A large demand existed for good Horses, which were scarce; the supply being chiefly made up of poor and inferior animals. These are daily offered, and from the energy displayed in thrusting them on the market, many of trem are sold to unsephisticated buyers. Some 300 heavy were displayed of it low prices; the buyers for the South being unwilling to make purchases of any but first-class stock, and they are waiting until the worthless nags are gotten rid of. Heavy draft and saidle horses are in demand.

ECONOMY DISPATCH Ber"A Stitch in Time Saves Nine," '50 As accidents will happen, even in well-regulated families, it is very desirable to have some cheap and evenient way for repairing Furniture, Toys SPALDING'S PREPARED GLUE Mends all such emergencies, and no household can afford to be without it. It is always ready and up to the slicking point. There is no longer a necessity for limping chairs, splintered veneers, headless dolls and broken cradies. It is just the article for bone, and broken cradies. It is just the article for bone, shell and other consumental work, so popular with ladies of refinement and tasts.

This admirable preparation is used cold, being chemically held in solution, and possessing all the valuable qualities of the best cabinet-makers' give.

It may be used in the place of ordinary mucilage, being vastly more adhesive.
